

Seminary & Divinity School Day 2009

Gustavus Adolphus College is partnering with Augsburg College of Minneapolis for Seminary & Divinity School Day on Thursday, September 24, 2009.

Seminary & Divinity School Day is a one-day opportunity for students interested in exploring the possibility of and options for post-graduate theological education. This annual event is a collaboration of colleges that has been held in the past at Gustavus Adolphus College (2005, 2006, 2008) and St. Olaf College (2003, 2007). This year, the momentum is being continued with the event to be held at Augsburg College.

Twenty top-notch seminaries and divinity schools are invited to have representatives at Augsburg on that day. Current students from 18 regional private and public undergraduate colleges and universities are invited and welcome to attend. There will be no cost for the events or lunch, and the Office of Church Relations will accompany and provide transportation. Pre-registration is necessary. The pre-registration deadline is Monday, September 21. For Gustavus students wishing to pre-register, please call Marilyn in the Office of Church Relations, 507-933-7001 or e-mail mbeyer@gustavus.edu.

The day will include worship; large-group sessions and a keynote presentation; workshops on a variety of topics relating to the various direction for theological post-graduate education, including traditional ministry, specialized ministry that may not involve ordination (such as youth & family, camping, sacred music, parish nursing, chaplaincies, and more), the Ph.D. track, the candidacy process, paying for graduate school, and more. There will be sessions for underclassmen who are just beginning to think about possibilities as well as for upperclassmen who are decided and want more information. There will also be opportunities throughout the entire day to meet with representatives from specific graduate schools for inquiry or interview.
