FERPA (Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act)

The same laws that give parents access to their child's education records during elementary and high school transfer ownership of the records to the student at the college level. According to FERPA (Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act, also known as the Buckley Amendment), college students are considered responsible adults and have some control over the disclosure of information from their education records.

A student may grant access to a parent (or other relevant persons) to view selected information via MyGustavus. Granting access is solely at the discretion of the student.

To view the options granted to you, you must first login to MyGustavus. Once your student grants you access to their information, a username and password will be created and sent to you by email if you don't have an existing MyGustavus account.

If you don't know your username or password, please contact proxyaccess@gustavus.edu ✉. Gustavus will only communicate through the MyGustavus proxy email address we have on file for you.
